

ITG Communications Announces Executive Leadership Team Transitions

April 16, 2026

Fort Lauderdale, Fla., April 16, 2026 — ITG Communications today announced the appointment of digital infrastructure veteran, Andy Parrott as Chief Executive Officer. Parrott will report to Mike Brooks, co-founder and former CEO, who has transitioned to Executive Chairman. The company also announced that Chris Mecray has joined as Chief Financial Officer.

“As we enter the next phase of ITG’s growth, this leadership transition positions the company to scale while maintaining our operational excellence and customer focus that have defined our success,” said Mike Brooks, Executive Chairman. “Andy brings deep industry experience and strong relationships, and Chris augments our financial leadership as we continue investing in our platform and deepening our commitment to our customers. I look forward to partnering with both in my new role.”

“It’s a privilege to step into the role of CEO at ITG,” said Andy Parrott. “The company has built a strong reputation for execution and reliability. I’m focused on building on that foundation, strengthening our teams, and continuing to deliver for our customers as we grow.”

“I’m thrilled to be joining ITG at such an important and exciting time in its evolution,” said Chris Mecray. “I look forward to working with our talented team to further strengthen and enhance the financial organization and support the company’s continued growth and expansion.”

Biographical Information

Andy Parrott brings more than 30 years of experience in the broadband and telecommunications industry, with a career that spans engineering, operations, and executive leadership. He has held leadership roles at Charter Communications, Suddenlink Communications, and Altice USA, and served as Chief Executive Officer of Vyve Broadband and Mega Broadband Investments, where he led the organization through a period of growth and operational transformation.
